

Poultry Press

We have uploaded this item to Internet Archive.org for one reason:

To make known to all that there are two libraries in America with important collections on microfilm of Poultry Press, the primary monthly publication in America that focuses on exhibition poultry. Those two libraries are:

1. Albert R. Mann Library, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853
2. National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD 20705

Historians and research workers with an interest in exhibition poultry America in the period 1943-2000 should, therefore, contact those two libraries if they are interested in reading the copies of Poultry Press in their collections.

About Poultry Press:

Poultry Press <info@poultrypress.com> is published in Connersville, Indiana 47331. At the head of the Poultry Press webpage, we read:

“Poultry Press is a family-owned and run monthly publication in a newspaper format which is mailed all over the world. Poultry Press is the essential guide for anyone who raises, shows or has an interest in poultry. Within each issue are numerous articles designed to better your breeding, hatching, raising and showing of poultry. We have listings in the form of advertisements which will let you know where the shows are in your area. In addition there are many advertisements where you can purchase Bantam Chickens, Large Fowl (Standard) Chickens, Ducks, Geese, Turkeys, etc.

“In the back of the newspaper we have a Classified section where you can sell or find all types of poultry or poultry supplies or books or any other poultry related items. In addition a listing of the specific breed clubs and national organizations devoted to poultry can be found throughout the newspaper.

“We have a section devoted to poultry judges that are available for hire from all over the country and Canada. There are plenty of pictures throughout the newspaper which show you the Champions and their owners throughout North America. We welcome you to subscribe today so that you do not miss out on a hobby that has brought such joy to countless numbers of individuals all over the world.”

Background information on the Poultry Press microfilm collections at the National Agricultural Library and at Cornell University:

For many years, as a breeder and exhibitor of standard Partridge Plymouth Rocks, we subscribed to and collected issues of Poultry Press. In 2004, having amassed a collection of 721 issues of Poultry Press, from the period October 1943-November 2000, we decided to have microfilmed all of these issues of Poultry Press. We did so in an effort to preserve this astonishing archive of exhibition poultry history as primary research material for present and future generations of poultry and agricultural historians.

The microfilming (16,918 pages) was performed by Microfilm Data Management Consultants, Kingston, PA 18704, at a cost of $5,221.22. Fourteen rolls of silver archival microfilm + one copy of those fourteen rolls were produced.

With the microfilming completed, Powell, then serving as the District 2 Director of the American Poultry Association, offered for sale, to the primary agricultural libraries in America, complete sets of these 14 rolls of professionally produced silver archival microfilm of Poultry Press, 1943-2000, at $400 per set.

Poultry Press* Microfilm at the National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD:

On November 29, 2004, the American Poultry Historical Society, Madison Wisconsin, purchased a set of these 14 rolls of microfilm to be placed in the National Agricultural Library, Beltsville, MD. See below (1) the 2-page letter of November 29, 2005 (should read 2004) from Louis C. Arrington to S. Robert Powell, and (2) the letter of December 13, 2004 from S. Robert Powell to Dr. Nicholas Zimmermann.

Dear Dr. Powell:

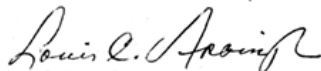

Some time ago, you apparently sent an e-mail to Richard Erdman regarding your project of putting POULTRY PRESS onto microfilm. He passed the information on to a co-worker at the University of Maryland, Nick Zimmermann. Nick is the current president of the American Poultry Historical Society.

The APHS focuses on preservation of the history of the commercial poultry industries in North America, while POULTRY PRESS deals mostly with exhibition poultry. We do, however, recognize the important contributions that exhibition poultry made in the development of commercial strains of poultry, as included in our book on the industry's history.

After discussions with other APHS officers and board members, it was decided to purchase a copy to be placed in the National Agricultural Library at Beltsville, Maryland. This will be a great supplement to the large volume of printed materials we have placed with the National Ag Library. The NAL librarian did ask whether there were any restrictions on access to the microfilms, as they are a public institution.

Our check for $400 is enclosed. I would ask you to ship the microfilms to Nick Zimmermann and he will get them to the library. Nick's address, e-mail and phone (in case there are any questions) are listed on the enclosed order form. We do appreciate your efforts to make this material available.

Sincerely,

Louis C. Arrington

Dear Dr. Zimmermann:

In accordance with the instructions in the November 29, 2004 letter of Louis C. Arrington (Treasurer, American Poultry Historical Society) to us (copy attached), we have shipped to you, today, a complete set of the microfilm edition of Poultry Press, 1943-2000 (14 rolls of 35 millimeter silver archival microfilm); APHS check #1298 for $400 received.

We are very pleased to learn that this microfilm will be placed in the National Agricultural Library at Beltsville, MD. We do understand that the NAL is a public institution and see no reason why there should be any restrictions of any kind on access to these microfilms.

We appreciate the American Poultry Historical Society's interest in and support of this microfilm project to preserve the history of exhibition poultry in America.

Sincerely,

S. Robert Powell

Poultry Press* Microfilm at the Cornell University, Ithaca, NY:

On July 28, 2009, Powell donated the originals of the 14 rolls of 35 millimeter silver archival microfilm of Poultry Press for the period 1943-2000 to Cornell University, Ithaca, NY. At the same time, he turned over to Cornell University the paper originals of those 721 issues of Poultry Press.

The Issues of Poultry Press in the National Agricultural Library and at Cornell University:

In the collections of Poultry Press, both at Cornell University and at the National Agricultural Library, there are 721 issues of Poultry Press for the period 1943-2000.

Many of the issues form the period 1943-1949 are missing (possibly they were not published during the World War II period?). Fifty-three of the issues from that 7-year period, however, are included. For the 50-year period, 1950-2000, however, only 14 issues are missing.

One or more issues per month of Poultry Press were published in the period 1943--July 1955. Since August 1955, Poultry Press has been published once a month. In the period 1943-2000, Poultry Press was printed in six different formats:

Volume XXIX, No. 25 to Volume XXXV, No. 14,	18"	x	24"
Volume XXXV, No. 16 to Volume 50, No. 5,	11"	x	15"
Volume 50, No. 6 to Volume 52, No. 10,	11 1/2"	x	16"
Volume 52, No. 11 to Volume 60, No. 2,	11 1/2"	x	17"
Volume 60, No. 3 to Volume 60, No. 12,	11 1/2"	x	15"
Volume 61, No. 1 to Volume 86, No. 12,	11 1/2"	x	17"

Here is a list of the specific issues of Poultry Press on 35-millimeter microfilm at the National Agricultural Library and at Cornell University:
